COTTON MARKET.

New York, Nov. 27.—The cotton market took a further upward turn this morning in response to cables, but immediately headed downward on profittaking sales. New Orleans and Wall street houses sold rather heavily, and by midafternoon the deciline had extended about 25 points. Weather was favorable, and the movement showed a slight increase over the last few days. The situation was disturbed somewhat by a virtual corner in the November option, which was bid up sharply about 90 points over last night's closing. The selling of so much long cotton made the market susceptible to bearish attacks, and raids by ring professionals caught stop loss orders in the later trading. Southern spot markets steady and unchanged. Port receipts, 77,000, against 61,000 last year.
